

Using ANZ Newsstand from home, school or public library

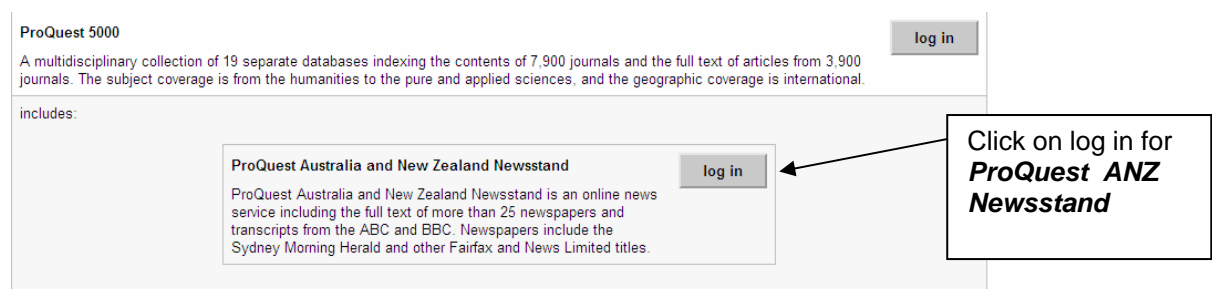

ANZ Newsstand contains full text articles from Australian and New Zealand newspapers. You will need to register for a Readers Card with the State Library of NSW to access this database.

Getting into ANZ Newsstand

- To access the database click on Access from home

- Scroll down the list of databases to ProQuest Australia and New Zealand Newsstand and log in.

You will need to log in using your readers card number. If you have problems logging in read the Access from home FAQ.

Start your search

Type in your keywords using the connectors AND or OR. Use quotation marks for phrases or names eg “double jeopardy” or “sef gonzales”.

Each hit will look like this.

The screenshot shows a ProQuest document view page. At the top, there are tabs for 'Basic', 'Advanced', 'Publications', and 'My Research'. Below the tabs, it says 'Databases selected: ProQuest ANZ Newsstand'. The main heading is 'Document View'. There are buttons for 'Print' and 'Email'. A 'Back to Results' link is visible. The document title is 'NSW to end double jeopardy law'. Below the title, there is a 'Jump to full text' link, a language selection dropdown, and a 'More Like This' link. The author information is listed as 'Tom Iggulden'. Callout boxes provide instructions: 'To modify or start a new search click on Basic', 'Click here to read the whole article' (pointing to the 'Jump to full text' link), and 'Back to Results returns you to the list of headlines' (pointing to the 'Back to Results' link).

Some searching tips

- You can limit your search by date choosing a specific date or a date range.
- You can select More Search Options on the Basic search screen. This will allow you to:
 - choose a particular source eg Sydney Morning Herald
 - sort your results by relevance.
- If you get too many results it's a good idea to limit your search by using the option Look for terms in. Choose Citation and Abstract from the drop-down menu as this will give you articles that deal primarily with your subject, rather than just mentioning it.

To print or email

Click on the print or email buttons. If you are emailing choose ProQuest Standard

Email Document

The screenshot shows the 'Email Document' form. It includes a 'Citation style' dropdown menu set to 'ProQuest Standard'. There are three radio button options for 'Format': 'Brief citation -citation and link', 'Document Summary -citation, indexing, abstract, and link', and 'Full text -citation, indexing, abstract, full text, and link'. The 'Full text' option is selected. There are two radio button options for 'Send email as': 'HTML (not supported by all email programs)' and 'Plain text (compatible with all email programs)'. The 'HTML' option is selected. Below the format and send email options are fields for 'Your name', 'Email address', 'Subject', and 'Message'. A callout box provides instructions: 'Don't forget to' followed by a list: 'click on Full text', 'choose format', and 'enter your email address'. Arrows point from the callout box to the 'Full text' radio button, the 'Format' section, and the 'Email address' field.
